The subject had been in hiding from 1942 on, as a university student who refused to sign the pledge of loyalty to the Germans. The first contact which he had with Allied pilots was in September 1944 when he provided minor escort service for Captain George Sykes, USAAF. In mid November 1944 he personally escorted Private James Kerr, of the British Airborne Division, through the German lines over the Rhine River near Opheusden and landed safely with the 51st Highland Division. This was a most hazardous undertaking at that time when German vigilance was very great. He then worked with IS 9 WEA as an interpreter and liaison until 19 January 1945 when he was sent to England and given parachute training. As an officer, he was then dropped into Holland on 3 March 1945 to work with a dual capacity as an S-Phone agent of providing intelligence agents information and assisted in the direction of evasion. His difficulties were very great but he made contact over the Ijsel River with the proper persons for furnishing the intelligence information and the assistance in evasion direction. He, on several occasions, was able to transmit by S-Phone information concerning the German activities and the presence of Allied evaders north and east of the Ijsel River. But on 26 March 1945 when established near Gorssel, the house in which he and his brother, Jacob van Wijngaarden, who was assisting him in this work, were living and operating, was attacked by the Landwacht (Dutch Nazis Troops) and all occupants captured. With great daring, the subject succeeded in making a dash for liberty during the house searching which followed the capture. His brother and the other occupants of the house were executed on April 5th, one day before the liberation of that territory. The patients exhibited by this man in his initial escape into liberated territory with an evader, his volunteering for parachute training and intelligence instructions, and the carrying out of his assigned duties, despite difficulties, will merits the AWARD GRADE 4. As the greater part of his work was carried on as a commissioned officer, I recommend that he be awarded the Military Bronze Star.

DECLASSIFIED Authority NND 745001

Geachte Heer van de Wind,

Na onze uitnodiging circa 3 weken terug, hebben wij U niet meer mogen zien en ben ik ook zelf niet vaak in Amsterdam geweest. U is steeds welkom elke Vrijdag of Zaterdagavond tegen acht uur, met Uw gast naar ons toe te komen, om onze filmvoorstelling bij te wonen.

In Uw rapport omtrent hulp aan piloten vermeldt U niet de naam van den ondergronschen persoon, die U dezen piloot overhandigd heeft. Het is ons thans bekend, dat het den Heer Jan Gilian was, thans woonachtig te Haarlem.

Met vriendelijke groeten,

CITATION FOR MEDAL OF FREEDOM

L. van Wijngaarden, Dutch Civilian, fought most courageously for the cause of liberty by rendering aid of exceptional importance to members of the American and British armed forces who were evading capture in the enemy-occupied countries of Europe. The courage, bravery, and exceptional devotion to the common cause of freedom displayed by this person in undertaking such hazardous duties, knowing the price to be paid if apprehended, were a definite contributing factor to the termination of hostilities in this theater, meriting the highest degree of praise.
